

Consuming issues: Industry ignores WHO chief's attack on Big Food

12 July 2013 | By: Ben Cooper

The World Health Organization's combative director-general has publicly hit out at the "business interests" of what she calls "Big Food", which, she claims presents a "daunting challenge" to improving public health. As Ben Cooper reports, the food industry has chosen not to respond. Existing members, login here to read access the full article.

Public health faces "daunting challenge" from "Big Food", Dr Chan believes